A LUXURY HOTEL FOR MOTORCYCLE ENTHUSIASTS

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 6, 2008

Yes, you read that correctly. The new Iron Horse Hotel in Milwaukee, set to open in September, is a luxury hotel geared towards both business travelers and motorcycle enthusiasts (because, in a sense, they're both "road warriors").

How would a hotel cater to motorcycle enthusiasts, you ask? Well, the rooms feature custom hooks for hanging heavy leathers, as well as a bench for removing and storing boots and helmets. Downstairs, covered parking for motorcycles is available, with rag bins and check in carts, so that riders can easily transport materials up to their room.

Special packages, including packed lunches and ride routes, will be available, as will rejuvenating spa services geared towards riders. And did we mention that the hotel is located near to the city's new Harley-Davidson Museum?

Located in a 100 year-old warehouse, the urban boutique hotel features 100 loft-style guest rooms, done up in modern-chic furniture and fabrics, as well as two top-floor, two-level suites. All of the rooms offer wireless internet, luxury linens and flat-screen TVs.
